Support for life

Ben helped Gary support his mum

Gary works in the industry and had been struggling after his father left the family home, leaving behind debt and unpaid bills. Gary was desperately trying to maintain the house and help his mum pay the bills. His 40-mile commute to work was also costing a lot in petrol and the commute time was eating into the time he could spend at home.

Ben provided Gary with information, advice and guidance and the organisation's Support Services team encouraged him to speak to his manager about changing the location of his current role. Gary's manager agreed to him moving to his local store, which meant he no longer had to travel 80 miles a day which gave him the opportunity to spend two hours more at home with his mum.

Ben supported Gary through this difficult transition so that he was able to work in his local area and better support his mum.
